

Our Contributors

Rachel Muers is Senior Lecturer in Christian Studies at the University of Leeds, having previously held posts at the University of Exeter and at Girton College, Cambridge. She is the author of several books and articles in the fields of Christian theology and theological ethics.

Rhiannon Grant's work focusses on religious language and how it works in specific religious communities. Her work has been published in journals such as 'Feminist Theology' and 'Quaker Studies'. Having completed her PhD at the University of Leeds, she has taught at Leeds Trinity University, helps to edit the website Living with Conflict, runs workshops for adults, and is involved in several research projects.

Ralph Catts is the Pastor of Hull Unitarian Church, having trained for the Unitarian ministry at Unitarian College, Manchester. This paper has grown out of his studies and has been further developed after consulting with parents at St Mark's Edinburgh and Birmingham New Meeting congregations during his period of training. He had a previous career in the civil service in Australia and then as a university researcher in Australia and in Scotland. His past area of research interest was access to education and employment for people from the most disadvantaged backgrounds. He focused on access to information in the digital age and the role of social capital.

Victor Lal was educated in his native Fiji Islands and at the University of Oxford where he was Reuters, Wingate and Research Fellow and Research Associate, and is presently Visiting Scholar at the Centre for Global History, University of Oxford. He became interested in the history of the British Unitarians and their links with India while a student at Harris Manchester College in the 1990s. Victor Lal is also completing a biography of another Unitarian minister, Rev Annie Margaret Barr, who after studying theology at Manchester College (as it was then known) went to India in 1933 to work among the villagers of Khasi Hills, Assam, in India.

Dan C. West is a retired Presbyterian minister living in Atlanta who spent most of his career in college work. He has worked in a number of liberal arts colleges and was president successively of Lyon College and Carroll University over a period of twenty years. He holds degrees from Austin College, Union Presbyterian Seminary, and Vanderbilt and Harvard Universities.

Susan Fogarty is the Bro Enlli Ministry Area Warden for the Church in Wales, which includes St Hywyn's Church, Aberdaron. She is the founder of the R.S. Thomas Literary Festival. She has devised a unique poetry meditation, Pilgrimage through Poetry: Stations to the Untenanted Cross. Inspired by R.S. Thomas's poetry and the ancient church of St Hywyn that overlooks the sea. Now presented in churches in the UK and America. She leads Pilgrim groups around Aberdaron, to places that inspired and reflect Thomas's poetry. Through Journeying.co.uk, she leads Christian walking holidays. For more information about the R.S. Thomas Literary Festival see www.rsthomaspoetry.co.uk or email susanafogarty@gmail.com.

Mark Adair is a member of First Presbyterian Church, Belfast and an active member of the Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Church of Ireland.

Martin Fitzpatrick is formerly a Senior Lecturer and Senior Research Fellow at Aberystwyth University. He is a founder with D.O. Thomas of the journal Enlightenment and Dissent (now open access online) and is at present co-editor of the journal with James Dybikowski. He is editor with Peter Jones of a forthcoming study on the reception of Edmund Burke (Bloomsbury 2016).

Marcus Braybrooke is a retired parish priest. He is President of the World Congress of Faiths and was for a time Director of the Council of Christians and Jews and author of the book Meeting Jews, which is published by Christians Aware.

Pat Frankish is a Clinical Psychologist, Fellow and past President of the British Psychological Society. She has degrees in psychology, including a doctorate and a Foundation Degree in Ministry Studies. Mother of three grown up children and activist in her local community, she has more recently followed her vocation into the Church. She is a licensed Reader and exploring priestly ministry. From being the local Town Mayor, and leading the Town Hall team in an extensive refurbishment she has now put her energies into supporting her local Church. She finds the links between psychology, philosophy and theology fascinating and devours texts with energy. She plans to write her own book on the psychology/theology link in the not too distant future.

Rosemary Arthur is a theologian with a PhD in Early Church History. She is particularly interested in spirituality, mysticism and heresy. She lives in Yorkshire.

Lena Cockroft is Non-Subscribing Presbyterian minister to the congregations of Glenarm, Cairncastle and Ballymoney, co. Antrim, Northern Ireland and a former Moderator of the Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Church of Ireland.